

Call for Application for Sponsorship to attend McGill Summer Course

With aim of capacity building in research in Infectious Diseases and faculty exchange at Manipal Academy of Higher Education, MAC ID sponsors deserving faculty to attend McGill Summer Courses in McGill University, Canada.

McGill University and McGill University Health Centre offers several short courses on infectious diseases from June 11-22, 2018, wherein 7 courses are offered over two weeks.

Week 1: June 11-15

- TB Research Methods
- Global Health Diagnostics
- Qualitative Methods in Global Infectious Diseases Research

Week 2: June 18-22

- Clinical Tropical Medicine
- Clinical TB: A focused clinical & public health review for healthcare workers – (New course)
- Advanced TB Diagnostics
- Genomic Epidemiology of Infectious Diseases

These courses are being conducted by internationally renowned faculty and encompass excellent lectures and panel discussions, offer numerous chances to network, collaborate, and provide opportunities to meet policy makers from disease-endemic countries

This year up to 3 candidates will be sponsored by MAC ID for the McGill Summer course (depending on the availability of MAC ID funds)

MAC ID will cover travel, registration and accommodation expenditure incurred by the selected candidates for attending this course.

Eligibility criteria:

- Open only to MAC ID members who have ≥ 3 years of experience as faculty
- The awardees are expected to submit their report to MAC ID within 15 days of return.

- The Faculty who attend the McGill Summer Course are required to develop and submit a Seed grant proposal to MAC ID during the next Seed Grant Award Competition. This might also be in collaboration with McGill Faculty
- The awardees should hold capacity building workshops in areas of their respective strengths within 1 year of return, to disseminate the experience gained in collaboration with their Department and MAC ID.
